

2023 Annual Uehiro Lectures in Practical Ethics

Knowledge and Achievement Their Value, Nature, and Public Policy Role

A series of three public lectures at the Oxford Martin School

Free to attend and all welcome | please register in advance (see below)

Friday 13 October, 4.30—6.30pm | Knowledge and Achievement as Organic Goods

Wednesday 18 October, 4.30—6.30pm | Degrees of Value in Knowledge and Achievement

Friday 20 October, 4.30—6.30pm | Knowledge and Achievement as Public Policy Goals

Professor Thomas Hurka

Chancellor Henry N. R. Jackman Distinguished Professor of Philosophical Studies, University of Toronto

Professor Thomas Hurka's main area of research and teaching is moral and political philosophy, especially normative ethical theory.

Authored books include Perfectionism (OUP) and Virtue, Vice, and Value (OUP). He has also discussed the justification of punishment, population ethics, nationalism, friendship, and the morality of war.

Professor Hurka's non-academic book The Best Things in Life was published in 2011 (OUP), and describes the many things – pleasure, knowledge, achievement, virtue, personal love – that can make life desirable.

Register here

bookwhen.com/uehiro

Venue

Lecture Theatre, Oxford Martin School
34 Broad Street, Oxford OX1 3BD

